 Fifty of the Lancers—which regiment has been disbanded—arrived here Thursday, and eighty-two more came in Friday night. The regiment stationed here must be nearly full, if not quite so.

The regiment is stationed in a large brick building east of the depot. In the basement is the culinary arrangement. Each company cooks for itself. The boys have lots of fun. They have a debating society, and also hold dances in the upper story, where they "balance to your partner" in the genuine style, to the music of the fiddle and bones. And then, we are sorry to say, there is another class who like to "pitch in" and have a good fight. We saw three last week, one of which resulted in both the participants being badly used up by a more sensible horse; they having got under his feet, he gently helped them out by kicking them a rod or two.

We believe there are no immediate dangerous cases in the hospital, at present. Query—why do they put a person afflicted with a contagious disease in the same room with the other patients?

The regiment has also got a snorer. As these institutions are causing great excitement and talk in Washington, those wishing to see one will find him next door to the—Guard House.

 We gave in our last issue a brief notice
